Online PR News "01-July-2011" The company Financial Spread Betting Ltd. launched an early version of a community as a part of their website financial-spread-betting.com. This new financial spread trading community is in its early stages of design and development. It has been created to enable users and visitors to the website to sign up and exchange notes, compare strategies, and offer advice, tips, and strategies to form an interactive hub regarding this mode of trading. Traders across the globe can communicate and collaborate with each other on this single and unique platform that is the latest addition to the existing educational and informative repertoire of resources that are already offered by the portal. By offering experienced traders an opportunity to express their thoughts, views, opinions, and valuable feedback pertaining to the practice of financial spread betting, the community gives people a chance to leverage the information that is displayed to make the most of their trading and betting experience.

Â

A few salient features of this new online community include, but are not limited to enabling features that allow users to create their own blog and create posts as a part of their trading diary that can be shared with everyone and an article publishing system where spread betting providers can publish their own articles that are populated with a number of market insights, and betting tips, techniques, and strategies. This resource is primarily geared towards helping novices as well as expert spread traders maximize the advantages that this form of trading offers, apart from its existing benefits like tax, stamp duty and commission exemption, no physical ownership of the underlying instrument, etc.

Â

Financial-spread-betting.com/community is also the place where people can look forward to instant and easy access to a number of informative and authoritative videos on financial spread trading. With scores of users coming together with collective information from various sources and reference links online, this community has immense scope and potential and presents an incredible opportunity to learn from experienced traders and financial experts who not only understand but also analyze the nuances and intricacies of the process apart from the trends and developments in the financial markets.
