Online PR News " 11-September-2012 " CondoCompare, Inc., a Web site for researching, buying and selling condominiums, announced today that it has launched its real estate search platform in the city of Chicago, Illinois. CondoCompare was only doing business on the west coast, and is excited to get an east coast presence. CondoCompare prepares for further expansion and growth beyond its existing markets of the Pacific Northwest and Northern California. According to Casey

Sullivan, Co-Founder and CEO of CondoCompare, CondoCompare.com gives customers all the tools they need to buy and sell condos, including a huge network of knowledgeable real estate brokers to help throughout the often complicated condo transaction. We place condo units in the context of a condo building, which seems obvious...

but is very complicated and cumbersome to make happen.

CondoCompare.com has been growing steadily in the Seattle market since its debut in 2008 and plans to take its business model national in the next few years. Customers have never yearned more for contextual data and expert advice from qualified condo brokers than they do in today's turbulent market, said Sullivan, who has led CondoCompare.com since its inception. Chicago is a great city, and the condo market in Chicago is one of the best in the world. We are excited about being able to provide Chicago residents a great condo search tool.
