New York, NY, Dec. 17 Passion project turned podcast, Why Watch That, started by two local artists known as the Critic and Referee, launched the first book in its "Viewing Digest" series just in time for the holiday season.

Â

Home for the Holidays: Knowing What Movies and TV Shows to Watch for Any Type of Family is an invaluable entertainment resource for any movie or TV watcher, especially as the holiday season approaches. During the next month, most people gather with their families and don't want to waste time figuring out what to watch.

Â

"This guide will be the ultimate holiday time-saver, so that you can focus on the heart of the holidays--spending time with loved ones," says the Why Watch That Referee.

Â

This collection of suggested movies and TV shows was especially crafted to offer an eclectic mix of entertainment options for any family type. "Thats what Why Watch That is all about. We want you to find movies and TV shows that youll love to watch," says the Why Watch That Critic.

Â

The Why Watch That Podcast was created to help people navigate through the myriad of options in the movie and television show spaces, by providing watchers with tools to help decide what option will be the best use of their time.

Â

The Why Watch That Podcast is celebrating its one year anniversary this winter and launched its 50th episode on December 13, 2014. The digital version of Home for the Holidays is available at WhyWatchThat.com for free. A print version is available, as well. Details are on the website.

Â

The Why Watch That Critic and Referee are available for interviews and appearances. For booking presentations, media appearances, interviews, and/or book-signings, contact info@whywatchthat.com.
