User-friendly online platform makes hiring caregivers simple and efficient for families in Los Angeles and Orange County

Online PR News "01-July-2015" June 12, 2015 (Los Angeles) This week, CaregiversDirect made the announcement that it will offer a free month of service to new members in its network, allowing careseekers to instantly connect with quality caregivers without the hassle or expense of using a traditional caregiving agency. The companys simple, user-friendly online platform is disrupting the entire in-home healthcare industry.

Â

Those looking for temporary care, long-term assistance, or something in between can choose from an ever-growing network of caregivers that have at least two years of prior experience and have been pre-screened and interviewed. Careseekers can browse detailed profiles and read reviews about their potential caregivers before making any hiring decisions. The companys dedicated support staff offers concierge service at a small fraction of the cost that competitors charge.

Â

CaregiversDirect has brought a new solution to the in-home caregiving industry, offering individuals and families more personal choice in finding a caregiver, said Reva Gindi, General Manager of CaregiversDirect. I am confident that this latest promotion will continue to grow our client base as we look to expand our business in Southern California and beyond it.

Â

Traditional agencies and other online platforms take as much as half of their caregivers wages. CaregiverDirect stands apart from the rest, letting their caregivers keep every single cent they make. With a streamlined and efficient hiring process, caregivers can set their own terms and decide their own hours.

Â

The network is currently available for caregivers and careseekers in Los Angeles and Orange County, but will be expanding to other markets across the United States in the near future. You can sign up today at caregiversdirect.com
